SAILORS LOST IN ATTEMPTED RESCUE

Court Hearing In Turner Murder Started

TESTIMONY WILL BE
CONCLUDED IN DAY;
WITNESS IS ABSENT

Daughter of Alleged Slay-
er Fails To Appear
For Hearing

All testimony by both state and defense in the court hearing of the case of Robert H. Turner, 35, colored, confessed slayer of his brother-in-law, Ulysses Deatherage, colored, Wilmette Pike, which began before Judge R. L. Gowdy in Common Pleas Court Tuesday morning, was expected by counsel to be concluded late in the afternoon.

Status of the trial was complicated Tuesday when it became known that Mabel Turner, elder daughter of Turner, expected to be the state's star witness of the trial, who is in Madison County, Ky., would not appear at the hearing.

Turner had declared in furnishing a motive for the killing of his brother-in-law, that Deatherage had been taking liberties with his daughter.

The Turner girl departed immediately for Kentucky following the coroner's inquest and has since been living with her grand mother. She recently gave birth to a child.

Her grand mother refused to allow the girl to attend the hearing because of the unsettled weather, in view of her weakened condition.

Judge Gowdy has granted Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall and defense counsel, Harry Armstrong and F. L. Johnson, the privilege of continuing the hearing should they decide the girls' deposition is needed to complete evidence in the case. Attorneys have no decided this point.

The daughter and other witnesses of the shooting have refused to uphold the contentions of the confessed slayer during the preliminary stages of the case. Mabel testified at the coroner's inquest her father had misdirected Deatherage's attention to her.

Testimony introduced at the hearing Tuesday was devoid of the sensational. The state subpoenaed only ten witnesses and the defense but four.

State's witnesses included Sheriff Morris Sharp, Deputy Sheriff John Baughn, Mrs. Muggie Deatherage, widow of the slain man; Vernetta Deatherage, a daughter; Charles W. Deatherage, a son; D. M. Hugely, E. F. Canby, Mr. Fauley, Dr. R. R. McClellan and Dr. R. H. Grube. The four defense witnesses are Sheriff Sharp, Deputy Sheriff Baughn, Motorcycle Policeman Peter Shagn and Mrs. Deatherage.

Turner pleaded guilty to homicide when arraigned, leaving determination of the degree to the judgment of Common Pleas Judge Gowdy upon evidence submitted, without a jury.

Defense counsel is permitted to introduce testimony in mitigation and in some ways the trial is similar to the famous Loeb-Leopold murder case in Chicago.

CHIROPRACTOR ADMITS GUILT

PRESIDENT HAS APPROVED CONVICTION OF MITCHELL

Mitigates Court Martial Sentence To Include Half-Pay
During Suspension—Mitchell Silent On Advice of Friends

Washington, Jan. 26.—On the advice of his counsel and friends, Col. William Mitchell today remained silent in the face of President Coolidge's approval of his conviction and five year suspension from the army to await developments.

The award by the president of half pay during the period of suspension, his only modification of the sentence which cut off all Mitchell's pay has raised a new issue in that it may be drawn only "during the pleasure of the President."

Mitchell's counsel, Rep. Frank Reid, has denounced this string on Mitchell's pay as "un-American" and there are indications that Mitchell considers it a tether rope to keep him on.

If he appears before the committee and reiterates all his charges and criticisms, which the President demands "unfounded" a real issue will be raised.

A stenographer was called and he made a new statement saying Miss Dietrich attempted to blackmail him and he strangled her.

Desire on the part of Miss Dietrich to lead the life of the modern woman of gaiety led to the tragedy, Marshall maintained.

"For eight years I knew Miss Dietrich," he said. "She thought I was married. I always gave her money when she asked it."

Recently she was crazed with a desire for cabaret night life. She began learning the Charleston. I told her I could not go out with her but she insisted."

Marshall was transferred from the jurisdiction of Delaware County authorities at Media yesterday to be arraigned on a charge of murder here today.

On his arrival in Philadelphia he was again closeted with detectives and District Attorney Fox. Dorgodly parrying their constant thrusts for more than five hours, Marshall suddenly crumpled in his chair late last night and became hysterical.

"I begged and cajoled her to be reasonable. I even threatened violence, but she was obdurate," Marshall said in his statement. "She insisted I take her out. She wanted a whirl at life before she became too old."

"She came to my office Tuesday and again insisted I take her out. I refused and we argued."

"I became desperate and enraged. I seized her by the throat to shake her to make her understand I wouldn't and couldn't take her out."

"Then she began to scream. You ruined me and I'm going to ruin you with your family," she shouted. I held her by the neck with the one hand, while I took three handkerchiefs from my pocket and gagged her. I was afraid her screams would reach the street. As she struggled I tightened both hands on her throat, cutting off her breath until she crumpled to the floor. I was frenzied, I only wanted to make sure that she was lifeless, that I would never hear her scream again. To make double sure, I got a knife and cut her throat as she lay on the floor."

The girl's confession is alleged to have said in part:

"Carelli's attorney came to me at Middlefield and fixed up this dance story at the Chagrin Falls fair so I made an affidavit saying that and testified the same at his extradition hearing."

"The truth of it is, of course, that he was never at the fair and neither was I. Albert came to me later and told me never to change that story as I could be sent to prison for perjury for ten years if I did. I like him and told that story to help him out."

Cleveland authorities indicated that they would push legal charges against Carelli despite the fact Pennsylvania seeks to have him returned there to face other charges.

CONFESSED SLAYER GUARDED TO THWART POSSIBLE SUICIDE

Admits He Choked Woman
To Death To Check
Blackmail

Philadelphia, Jan. 26.—Guards paced the corridor in front of the cell of David L. Marshall, chiropractor today, to prevent him attempting to end his own life following his dramatic confession that he not only was the man who dismembered the body of Anna May Dietrich, but that he strangled her to death.

"I lied, I lied," he shouted at questioners re-examining him on his story that Miss Dietrich committed suicide in his office and that he had dismembered and hidden its parts in a panic of fear.

A stenographer was called and he made a new statement saying Miss Dietrich attempted to blackmail him and he strangled her.

Desire on the part of Miss Dietrich to lead the life of the modern woman of gaiety led to the tragedy, Marshall maintained.

Quick Way to End Dangerous Cough

Why let a dangerous cough hang on when you can, through a simple treatment, get speedy relief and then break it up completely in 24 hours?

This treatment is based on the famous Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You take just one teaspoonful and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. It has a double action. It not only soothes and heals irritation, but also removes the phlegm and congestion which are the real cause of the coughing. So the worst cough quickly disappears.

Dr. King's New Discovery is for coughs, chest colds, bronchitis, spasmodic cough, etc. Fine for children, too—no harmful drugs. Very economical, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for Reasons for the Fess utterance were developed in the Osborne message Monday. No treatise was made as to the future attitude of the Klan toward the senators if, as anticipated, they defy the organization and support the World Court.

FESS MOVES TO GET OHIO BACK MONEY

Senator S. D. Fess, Yellow Springs, has introduced a bill directing the disbursing officers of the Department of Agriculture to issue a duplicate check for $23,912 to the State of Ohio to replace a check for similar amount which became lost in transit somewhere between his office and Columbus, O., nearly two years ago.

The check represented payment of $200 for highway improvement in Ohio on a certain project. Under the rules of the department a duplicate check cannot be issued unless the state official receiving the check, gives an indemnifying bond. Laws of Ohio prohibit any official giving such bond, hence the state has been without use of the funds.

Senator Fess' bill is intended to remedy the situation by authorizing the Department of Agriculture to ignore one of its rules.

Mrs. Graham Bryson added delightful bit to the program with "The Little Minister," impersonating the charming gypsy character in that book.

Attired in a powdered, flounced skirt, with frills and powdered wig, Mrs. W. H. McGevrey sang "My Days Have Been So Wondrous Free," and "Beneath A Weeping Willow Shade," by Frances Hopkinson, first American composer and a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

In Spanish, Mrs. Shields sang three fiery songs of that country, dressed in Spanish dress, mantilla, with red hose, slippers and fan. Her numbers were "Come With Me," by Ricardo Gomez, "The Traitors," by Lerdo de Taja, and "To Granada," by F. M. Alvarez.

Mrs. W. J. Cherry gave two songs, "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," old Scotch, and "I Dreamt I Dwell in Marble Halls," from "Bohemian Girl." She wore the tight basque and full skirt of a by-gone period.

ON ANNUAL PROGRAM

SAVINGS BANK IS CLOSED BY STATE

Farmers will share the platform with professors at Ohio's 14th annual Farmers' Week, Feb. 1 to 5, at the Ohio State University.

Of the 200 speakers on the program this year, 40 can qualify as "dirty farmers," invited to address Farmers' Week audiences because their success in some farm enterprise has been outstanding.

Ten of the twenty-five speakers on the program of the Ohio State Horticultural Society, to hold its 59th annual meeting in conjunction with Farmers' Week, are practicing fruit growers. The list includes Frame G. Brown of Worthington, C. A. Bingham of Cleveland, Alvin W. Barr of Stoutsville, and Frank Farnsworth of Waterville, among others, as well as widely known orchardists from other states.

On the program of the poultry department for Farmers' Week appear the names of two Ohioans who have achieved marked success with farm poultry flocks, Mrs. J. A. Gillis of Tiffin and John Offenberger of Grover City.

Successful potato growers, truck gardeners, dairymen and beekeepers will also share the platform during Ohio Farmers' Week with university and experiment station scientists, editors, railroad men, and farm organization leaders.

Whitehead commended the plan of the local Rotary Club in sponsoring a county-wide Boy Scout organization. His talk followed the regular club luncheon and he was introduced by J. J. Stout, chairman of the committee in charge of the meeting.

He stressed the benefits to be obtained by boys through enrollment in the Scouts. He said outlined Scout work directed their energies and that a "good boy was a busy boy." He urged the proper supervision of boys' spare time in order that they learn to work and play in the right manner.

POTTERY 4,000 YEARS OLD.

WHILE the main objective of the American Archaeological Expedition at Nemea in the Greek Peloponnesus this year has been the complete uncovering of the more important buildings of the sixth and seventh centuries, B. C., an additional piece of good fortune has been the discovery of a large cave containing masses of neolithic pottery estimated to be about 4,000 years old, according to the correspondent of an eastern newspaper.

A cable which has been received from the American school of Classical Studies in Athens, summarizing the work of the expedition to date, states that aside from this wholly unexpected find many important discoveries have been made, including the great altar in front of the temple of Zeus. The Stadium race course has been located and a portion of one side uncovered. Valuable deposits of votive offerings of the sixth and seventh centuries before the Christian Era also have been brought to light. Nemea, in the uplands of Northeast Arcadia, was a noted sanctuary of Zeus and the seat of the Nemean games, which were maintained for centuries and ranked with those held at Olympia.

It will be interesting to Ohioans, too, to know that this expedition at Nemea is financed by citizens of Cincinnati upon the initiative of Professor William T. Semple, of that city, son-in-law of Charles P. Taft.

Pottery 4,000 years old!

Sounds almost unbelievable doesn't it? And we are wondering if some of the present-day articles, hurled together and molded in such a short time by the hurry-up methods of modern machinery, will stand the wear and tear of the centuries as has this age-old pottery. Very likely, some of it will. Today the excavations conducted in various parts of the old world where dwelt the civilization of another era, produces only certain specific articles which seem to have survived the ravages of time. We do not see the articles which the years and centuries have destroyed. Likewise the future will see only those things which have been built strong, those walls and buildings which were constructed upon rock instead of sand.

After all, when you sift most everything in the world down to its shell, you find that it is the same old story of the survival of the fittest. Thus does time give the master workman his reward through the discoveries which are made by a later generation.

DISILLUSION COMES.

AN IMMIGRANT at night broke a window in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York and was arrested as he was climbing through the breach in the crystal. To the police he protested vehemently against being deprived of the right to a free man in a free country. He could not understand why a free public institution should be locked up, and since it was locked why he did not have the right to break in and feast his eyes and soul. He was removed to the psychopathic ward for examination.

There was no doubt in the minds of the police who arrested the man that he was mentally unbalanced. In the opinion of those policemen the window-breaker's definition of liberty and freedom was the product of a deranged mind. Because the alien carried the idea of liberty too far, policemen born in the "land of liberty" rushed him to a hospital for the insane.

So small number of persons come to this country with the firmly fixed belief that they will not find here any of those restrictions which they found intolerable in their native country. They are sincerely resentful when they find here as many laws as they were subject to at home, and that those laws are as ruthlessly enforced here as in the Old Country.

Finding they can not do whatever pleases them they come to regard themselves as the victims of tyranny, and so they are—of the tyranny necessary to the preservation of civilization.

A VERSATILE LANGUAGE.

THE department of commerce at Washington hall calls attention to some differences between English as "she is spoke" in England and in this country. The American "dry goods store" is the Englishman's "draper's;" our "hardware store" is his "ironmonger's;" our "automobile" in his "motor;" our "gasoline" is his "petrol;" our "wood alcohol" is his "methylated spirit."

It is timely advice in this day of extensive trade between the United States and England. If the breach in nomenclature between the two countries is not widening it is not closing rapidly.

Perhaps the commerce department bulletin was prompted by the unfortunate error of the American manufacturer who received a request from an English firm for prices on "suspenders." When no order followed he investigated and learned to his consternation that what are known in this country as "suspenders" are called "braces" in England, and that the American "garter" is the English "suspender." A parallel case is that of the American manufacturer who, in his advertising literature for distribution in England, used the word "druggist," only to discover that the Britons call their pharmacists "chemists."

Although speaking the same language, Uncle Sam and John Bull can not long engage in conversation without feeling the need of an interpreter. But one should not be surprised at that. A New England Yankee and a Southern Colonel have great difficulty in understanding each other, and the New Yorker talks a "foreign tongue" to the westerner.

IF YOU WOULD PLEASE ME

If you would please me when I've passed away

Let not your grief embitter you, Be brave;

Turn with full courage from my mounded grave

And smile upon the children at their play

Let them make merry in their usual way;

Do not with sorrow those young lives enslave

Or steal from them the fleeting joys they crave;

Let not your grieving spoil their happy day.

Live on as you have lived these many years,

Still let your soul be gentle and be kind—

I never liked to see those eyes in tears!

Weep not too much that you must stay behind.

Share in the lives of others as you'd share,

If God had willed it still to leave me there.

THE UNFURNISHED MIND

What a business or home is you get at once largely from its furnishings.

Cost is not the criterion of real value in this world.

Nor is any manner of display to be confused with worth. Sweep all wealth from the face of the earth and there still remains what gives to wealth its standing and its hope for value—character.

And it's character that gives the furnishing to a house or an office, or a mind.

A noted newspaper man in commenting on Northcliffe's life spoke of his unfurnished mind. A man of marvelous energy, initiative, executive genius, and at times of unusual personal charm, yet he neglected furnishing his mind. He built great properties and they made money—but no set plan or purpose guided this restless man.

It is a rare privilege to step into a furnished mind.

To have had the opportunity of stepping into such a mind as that of Gladstone, Harper, or Cofrad would have meant a feast in intellectual happiness to anyone hungry for a well furnished mind.

A well furnished mind is one that knows what it is about.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

SALLY LEE, a beautiful young public stenographer, marries

TOM PORTER, a real-estate salesman, but after one stormy year of quarrels caused by her desire to continue working so that they can live more comfortably, she leaves him and goes to work in a fashionable hotel in Atlantic City.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XXVII—NEW TEMPTATIONS

FTER a few days Sally's work settled down into regular routine. She reached her desk early, eager to see what the day would bring and tried to recapture the holiday feeling of her first few days in Atlantic City.

The big hotel with its bustle and hurry had lost much of its glamor. She no longer glanced up flushed with pleasure when she was conscious that he was studying her.

noon came and

"Look here, Miss—" he hesitated a moment while she told him her name. "Miss Lee, you're much too pretty a girl to be doing this kind of work. I believe you'd make a good model. You; just right for a miss size sixteen. Stand up and walk over toward that window. Yes—" he went on as impersonally as though he had been studying something in a window, "legs and ankles are good, carry yourself well. How'd you like to act as model for me next Saturday?"

Sally gasped with surprise. "Oh I couldn't. Saturday is always a busy day here. And besides I've never done anything like that."

"Time to start then. I'll ask your boss to let you off. He's a good friend of mine. Don't see how he ever picked such a good-looking girl for this job. Should have sent you right over to me. It's not permanent," "understand," he went on.

"Just Saturdays and Sundays sometimes we need a few models to show some of our gowns on the Boardwalk. There'll be another girl with you. All you have to do is walk up and down past the best hotels a few times, and then we put the gown in the window and some woman who wishes she could look like you comes in and buys it."

Sally's protestations that she couldn't do such a thing though in her heart she was thrilled and proud of the chance were drowned in his explanations.

"Only pay you ten dollars, but if you like you can take it out in merchandise. We'll give you a big reduction."

"You'd have to reduce things down to nothing almost." Sally smiled at the idea of her buying from him.

"Well, we'll see about that. You'll come then." And once more Sally found herself swept along in a strange current.

"Mind?" he answered. "I should

TOMATO DEVELOPED TO WITHSTAND WILT TO BE DISTRIBUTED

GIRLS' ORCHESTRA OF HOME IS HEARD

Tomato plants that will withstand the fusarium wilt, a serious disease of early tomatoes, have been developed and will be distributed to three sections of Ohio this year.

N. W. Glines, until recently extension specialist in horticulture at the Ohio State University, announced this in his annual report to the director of extension. The variety of tomato under experiment is the Bonny Best, an outstanding early variety.

The experiments have been under way since 1919," Mr. Glines explained. "At that time we selected tomato plants for their resistance to fusarium wilt from a crop in the greenhouse of Charles Reese, Cincinnati. Each year since plants have been selected from crops grown in a soil inoculated with fusarium wilt.

This past year four selections were planted in the greenhouse of U. G. Swingle, Columbus. Mr. Swingle has been unable to grow a crop of Bonny Best at any time within the past 10 years because of fusarium wilt.

"Two of these selections, grown in soil inoculated with the disease, produced and matured six full clusters of fruit without showing any symptoms of fusarium wilt. Two others produced 85 and 90 percent resistant, respectively. Seed from these selections will be distributed to three tomato growing sections of the state this year."

In the field growers have no control of fusarium wilt, the specialist says, except through development of resistant strains.

"Not Possible To Classify"

By Mack Sauer

A few jottings of the day by Samuel Pepys, Jr.: Up and to bathing my neck in saves and poultices and tied a piece of asofetida on a string to wear about my neck, something I have not done since my boy time, but which I will no take up, so much does my cold trouble me. Put paper around my socks, so that it will help keep my feet warm and bundled up ready for the chills of the day.

My furnace would not draw, not knowing whether it was because of the quality of the coal, or because the pipes need cleaning out; anyway put in a long distance call for my chore boy, who lives in the country, to come clean it out, and got into an argument with my wife about where long distance is located, she claiming she is right here in Xenia, but I wagering that she must be in London, England, or Paris, France, or some other long distance point, so long it takes to get her.

Again comes snow, to cover my walks which I have swept clean, so out and sweeping them again, getting some snow in my slippers, and why I should be so foolish as to wear low shoes this winter Heaven only knows. A dog baying in the distance, and I longed to be out with my gun trailing rabbits, a sport I have found no time for this year.

At the office found many ads for the classified page and, too, many result stories, making me feel that in all the territory between Columbus and Cincinnati there is no classified page equal to that of The Gazette for results. Heard a powerful lie from Vern Fairies about a horse running from a barn in which pop corn was stored and which was on fire, and when the pop corn was popped, the horse ran back into it again, and thinking it was snow and not pop corn, it froze to death.

On the street to get some new license tags for my flivver, fearing mightily the police.

EAGLES PREPARE TO REHABIT OLD NEST

Cleveland, O., Jan. 26—Two American eagles, familiar to hundreds of northern Ohioans are getting ready to move back into their great nest in the woods near Downhelm, to start raising their young.

The eagles have lived in the woods for many years. In the winter they go to the Wild Hill hollow, a few miles south and stay in the dense woods protected from the hardest storms.

Recently the eagles visited their nest near the lakeshore for the first time for several weeks. It was filled with snow. The birds usually return in February and lay their eggs.

WHY does FREED-EISEMANN lead in public choice? What has made FREED-EISEMANN one of the most phenomenal successes in Radio?

We thought we knew the answer, but we wanted to make sure so we went to an investigator, gave him the names and addresses of a huge list of FREED-EISEMANN users and asked him to send these people a questionnaire under his own name.

One of the questions he asked was: "If a friend of yours were buying a radio, which make would you recommend?"

By the thousands users replied, "I recommend FREED-EISEMANN to my friends."

It is this nation-wide enthusiastic approval by users that has made FREED-EISEMANN the largest Neutrodyne manufacturer in the world.

ALL FREED-EISEMANN sets are built for use with an aerial because it has been scientifically proved that an aerial is the most dependable means of picking from the air the maximum amount of broadcast energy.

Let us install a Freed Eisemann this week. Convenient terms can be arranged.

SAILORS LOST IN ATTEMPTED RESCUE

Court Hearing In Turner Murder Started

TESTIMONY WILL BE
CONCLUDED IN DAY;
WITNESS IS ABSENT

Daughter of Alleged Slay-
er Fails To Appear
For Hearing

All testimony by both state and defense in the court hearing of the case of Robert H. Turner, 35, colored, confessed slayer of his brother-in-law, Ulysses Deatherage, colored, Wilmington Pike, which began before Judge R. L. Gowdy in Common Pleas Court Tuesday morning, was expected by counsel to be concluded late in the afternoon.

Status of the trial was complicated Tuesday when it became known that Mabel Turner, elder daughter of Turner, expected to be the state's star witness of the trial, who is in Madison County, Ky., would not appear at the hearing.

Turner had declared in furnishing a motive for the killing of his brother-in-law, that Deatherage had been taking liberties with his daughter.

The Turner girl departed immediately for Kentucky following the coroner's inquest and has since been living with her grand mother. She recently gave birth to a child.

Her grand mother refused to allow the girl to attend the hearing because of the unsettled weather, in view of her weakened condition.

Judge Gowdy has granted Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall and defense counsel, Harry Armstrong and F. L. Johnson, the privilege of continuing the hearing should they decide the girls' deposition is needed to complete evidence in the case. Attorneys have no decided this point.

The daughter and other witnesses of the shooting have refused to uphold the contentions of the confessed slayer during the preliminary stages of the case. Mabel testified at the coroner's inquest her father had misdirected Deatherage's attentions to her.

Testimony introduced at the hearing Tuesday was devoid of the sensational. The state subpoenaed only ten witnesses and the defense but four.

State's witnesses included Sheriff Morris Sharp, Deputy Sheriff John Baughn, Mrs. Muggie Deatherage, widow of the slain man; Vernetta Deatherage, a daughter; Charles W. Deatherage, a son; D. M. Hugueley, E. F. Canby, Mr. Fauley, Dr. R. R. McClellan and Dr. R. H. Grube. The four defense witnesses are Sheriff Sharp, Deputy Sheriff Baughn, Motorcycle Policeman Peter Shagin and Mrs. Deatherage.

Turner pleaded guilty to homicide when arraigned, leaving determination of the degree to the judgment of Common Pleas Judge Gowdy upon evidence submitted, without a jury.

Defense counsel is permitted to introduce testimony in mitigation and in some ways the trial is similar to the famous Loeb-Leopold murder case in Chicago.

PRESIDENT HAS APPROVED CONVICTION OF MITCHELL

Mitigates Court Martial Sentence To Include Half-Pay During Suspension—Mitchell Silent On Advice of Friends

Washington, Jan. 26.—On the advice of his counsel and friends, Col. William Mitchell today remained silent in the face of President Coolidge's approval of his conviction and five year suspension from the army to await developments.

The award by the president of half pay during the period of suspension, only his modification of the sentence which cut off all Mitchell's pay has raised a new issue in that it may be drawn only "during the pleasure of the President."

Mitchell's counsel, Rep. Frank Reid has denounced this string on Mitchell's pay as "un-American" and there are indications that Mitchell considers it a tether rope to keep him "on the reservation" if he chooses to remain in the army.

Accordingly resignation from the army which Mitchell firmly intended to go ahead with as soon as his sentence was approved, is temporarily held up. He finally decided to resign as the best reply to his army prosecution. He will decide today, however, whether he will put "the President's pleasure" to a test.

The opportunity awaits him in the hearings of the House Military Committee, before which he has been invited to testify this week.

It appears before the committee and reiterates all his charges and criticisms, which the President declares "unfounded" a real issue will be raised.

A stenographer was called and he made a new statement saying Miss Dietrich attempted to blackmail him and he strangled her.

Desire on the part of Miss Dietrich to lead the life of the modern woman of gaiety led to the tragedy, Marshall maintained.

"For eight years I knew Miss Dietrich," he said. "She thought I was single at first. I had not told her I was married. I always gave her money when she asked it.

"Recently she was crazed with a desire for cabaret night life. She began learning the Charleston. I told her I could not go out with her but she insisted."

Marshall was transferred from the jurisdiction of Delaware County authorities at Media yesterday to be arraigned on a charge of murder here today.

On his arrival in Philadelphia he was again closeted with detectives and District Attorney Fox. Doggedly parrying their constant thrusts for more than five hours, Marshall suddenly crumpled in his chair late last night and became hysterical.

"I begged and cajoled her to be reasonable. I even threatened violence, but she was obdurate," Marshall said in his statement. "She insisted I take her out. She wanted a whirl at life before she became too old."

"She came to my office Tuesday and again insisted I take her out. I refused and we argued.

"I became desperate and enraged, I seized her by the throat to shake her to make her understand I wouldn't and couldn't take her out.

"Then she began to scream. 'You ruined me and I'm going to ruin you with your family,' she shouted. I held her by the neck with the one hand, while I took three handkerchiefs from my pocket and gagged her. I was afraid her screams would reach the street. As she struggled I tightened both hands on her throat, cutting off her breath until she crumpled to the floor. I was frenzied. I only wanted to make sure that she was lifeless, that I would never hear her scream again. To make double sure, I took a knife and cut her throat as she lay on the floor."

The girl's confession is alleged to have said in part:

"Carelli's attorney came to me at Middlefield and fixed up this dance story at the Chagrin Falls fair so I made an affidavit saying that and testified the same at his extradition hearing.

"The truth of it is, of course, that he was never at the fair and neither was I. Albert came to me later and told me never to change that story for ten years if I did. I like him and told that story to help him out."

Cleveland authorities indicated that they would push local charges against Carelli despite the fact Pennsylvania seeks to have him returned there to face other charges.

TREASURER'S SAFE LOOTED BY BANDITS

Hamilton, O., Jan. 26.—Police today were without clews to the identity of five bandits who held up the deputy treasurer in the county treasurer's office during the night and looted the safe of $5,000.

George Morey, 58, the deputy, said the bandits entered the office about 11 p.m. Morey said he was forced to stand by while the bandits robbed the strong box. They escaped in an automobile, he said.

Blackmail

Philadelphia, Jan. 26.—Guards paced the corridor in front of the cell of David L. Marshall, chiropractor today, to prevent him attempting to end his own life following his dramatic confession that he not only was the man who dismembered the body of Anna May Dietrich, but that he strangled her to death.

"I lied, I lied," he shouted at questioners re-examining him on his story that Miss Dietrich committed suicide in his office and that he had dismembered and hidden its parts in a panic of fear.

A stenographer was called and he made a new statement saying Miss Dietrich attempted to blackmail him and he strangled her.

Desire on the part of Miss Dietrich to lead the life of the modern woman of gaiety led to the tragedy, Marshall maintained.

KIRBY IS RESUMING HIS OWN TESTIMONY

Cleveland, O., Jan. 26.—Josiah Kirby, on trial here charged with using the mails to defraud while head of the now defunct $30,000,000 Cleveland Discount Company, today resumed testifying in his own behalf.

Defense attorneys expected to strengthen their case as Kirby further detailed the organization and business of the company, while he was president.

He said he interviewed an average of 100 persons a day, dictated 300 to 400 letters a week and worked out innumerable details in every department.

Kirby's testimony shifted the responsibility of alleged spurious financial statements to Ray L. Poland, former official of the company who had accused Kirby.

To add interest to the membership campaign contests between a number of the cities have been arranged. Among these will be Columbus against Toledo, and Cleveland against Cincinnati.

Quick Way to End Dangerous Cough

Why let a dangerous cough hang on when you can, through a simple treatment, get speedy relief and often break it up completely in 24 hours?

This treatment is based on the famous Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You take just one teaspoonful and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. It has a double action. It not only soothes and heals irritation, but also removes the phlegm and congestion which are the real cause of the coughing. So the worst cough quickly disappears.

Dr. King's New Discovery is for coughs, chest colds, bronchitis, spasmodic croup, etc. Fine for children, too—no harmful drugs. Very economical, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for "Two hundred and fifty thousand men and women of Ohio demand defeat of proposed World Court. We stand for peace, but without entangling alliances with foreign powers."

Copies of resolutions adopted by this session also were sent to the senators.

In a message recently to a Columbus woman Senator Fess defied any organization to cause him to break away from his party pledges in favor of adherence. Reasons for the Fess utterance were developed in the Osborne message Monday. No threat was made as to the future attitude of the Klan toward the senators if, as anticipated, they defy the organization and support the World Court.

FESS MOVES TO GET OHIO BACK MONEY

Senator S. D. Fess, Yellow Springs, has introduced a bill directing the disbursing officers of the Department of Agriculture to issue a duplicate check for $23,912 to the State of Ohio to replace a check for similar amount which became lost in transit some where between his office and Columbus, O., nearly two years ago.

The check represented payment of Federal aid for highway improvement in Ohio on a certain project. Under the rules of the department a duplicate check cannot be issued unless the state official receiving the check gives an indemnifying bond. Laws of Ohio prohibit any official giving such bond, hence the state has been without use of the funds.

Senator Fess' bill is intended to remedy the situation by authorizing the Department of Agriculture to ignore one of its rules.

COSTUME PROGRAM OF MUSIC CLUB ON MONDAY

Invited guests of members of the Xenia Woman's Music Club, who attended the open meeting of the society at the home of Mrs. Lawrence Shields, E. Second St., enjoyed a rare musical treat.

Music room of the handsome Shields home was filled with club members and their guests. Mrs. John M. Davidson, opened the program with a paper, a sketch of Jenny Lind. The paper dealt in an admirable manner with the history of the "Swedish Nightingale" and the audience gained a clear insight into the life of the famous singer.

Mrs. Davidson was also leader of the afternoon and introduced the various performers. Music of various nations and characters were given, each of the musicians appearing in the costume of the character she represented.

Miss Theda Downing presented the first number, "Minuet, No. 2 in A Major." Paderewski. She wore a quaint hoop-skirted dress and shawl. "On Fine Day" from "Madame Butterfly," by Puccini was presented by Mrs. John Watkins, who was dressed in Japanese kimono.

Mrs. Steele Poague gave a group of three numbers, "Dear Evelina, Sweet Evelina," "Carry Me Back To Old Virginny," and "O Susanna." She wore a dress fashionable in the "eighties" and applied a charming manner to her different numbers.

Mrs. James Wilson, III, in vivid gypsy costume and carrying a mandolin, sang "The Gypsy Love Song," by Victor Herbert, "Dear Little Hu" by the Rice Field," Genia Branscombe and "Come With Me To Romany," by J. Lewis Brown.

Mrs. Graham Bryson added delightful bit to the program with a reading from "The Little Minister" impersonating the charming gypsy character in that book.

Attired in a powdered, flounced skirt, with frills and powdered wig, Mrs. W. H. McGervey sang "My Days Have Been So Wondrous Free," and "Beneath A Weeping Willow Shade," by Frances Hopkinson, first American composer and a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

In Spanish, Mrs. Shields sang three fiery songs of that country, dressed in Spanish dress, mantilla, with red hose, slippers and fan. Her numbers were "Come With Me," by Ricardo Gomez, "The Traitor," by Lerdo de Taja, and "To Granada," by F. M. Alvarez.

Mrs. W. J. Cherry gave two songs, "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," old Scotch, and "I Dreamt I Dwell in Marble Halls," from "Bohemian Girl." She wore the tight basque and full skirt of a by-gone period.

Miss Juanita Rankin closed the program with a piano solo, "Hungarian Rhapsody, No. 2," Liszt. She wore a Hungarian gypsy costume.

POTTERY 4,000 YEARS OLD.

WHILE the main objective of the American Archaeological Expedition at Nemea in the Greek Peloponnesus this year has been the complete uncovering of the more important buildings of the sixth and seventh centuries, B. C., an additional piece of good fortune has been the discovery of a large cave containing masses of neolithic pottery estimated to be about 4,000 years old, according to the correspondent an eastern newspaper.

A cable which has been received from the American school of Classical Studies in Athens, summarizing the work of the expedition to date, states that aside from this wholly unexpected find many important discoveries have been made, including the great altar in front of the temple of Zeus. The Stadium race course has been located and a portion of one side uncovered. Valuable deposits of votive offerings of the sixth and seventh centuries before the Christian Era also have been brought to light. Nemea, in the uplands of Northeast Arcadia, was a noted sanctuary of Zeus and the seat of the Nemean games, which were maintained for centuries and ranked with those held at Olympia.

It will be interesting to Ohioans, too, to know that this expedition at Nemea is financed by citizens of Cincinnati upon the initiative of Professor William T. Semple, of that city, son-in-law of Charles P. Taft.

Pottery 4,000 years old!

Sounds almost unbelievable doesn't it? And we are wondering if some of the present-day articles, hurled together and molded in such a short time by the hurry-up methods of modern machinery, will stand the wear and tear of the centuries as has this age-old pottery. Very likely, some of it will. Today the excavations conducted in various parts of the old world where dwelt the civilization of another era, produces only certain specific articles which seem to have survived the ravages of time. We do not see the articles which the years and centuries have destroyed. Likewise the future will see only those things which have been built strong, those walls and buildings which were constructed upon rock instead of sand.

After all, when you sift most everything in the world down to its shell, you find that it is the same old story of the survival of the fittest. Thus does time give the master workman his reward through the discoveries which are made by a later generation.

DISILLUSION COMES.

AN IMMIGRANT at night broke a window in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York and was arrested as he was climbing through the breach in the crystal. To the police he protested vehemently against being deprived of the right to a free man in a free country. He could not understand why a free public institution should be locked up, and since it was locked why he did not have the right to break in and feast his eyes and soul. He was removed to the psychopathic ward for examination.

There was no doubt in the minds of the police who arrested the man that he was mentally unbalanced. In the opinion of those policemen the window-breaker's definition of liberty and freedom was the product of a deranged mind. Because the alien carried the idea of liberty too far, policemen born in the "land of liberty" rushed him to a hospital for the insane.

So small number of persons come to this country with the firmly fixed belief that they will not find here any of those restrictions which they found intolerable in their native country. They are sincerely resentful when they find here as many laws as they were subject to at home, and that those laws are as ruthlessly enforced here as in the Old Country.

Finding they can not do whatever pleases them they come to regard themselves as the victims of tyranny, and so they are of the tyranny necessary to the preservation of civilization.

A VERSATILE LANGUAGE.

THE department of commerce at Washington hall calls attention to some differences between English as "she is spoke" in England and in this country. The American "dry goods store" is the Englishman's "draper's;" our "hardware store" is his "ironmonger's;" our "automobile" in his "motor;" our "gasoline" is his "petrol;" our "wood alcohol" is his "methylated spirit."

It is timely advice in this day of extensive trade between the United States and England. If the breach in nomenclature between the two countries is not widening it is not closing rapidly.

Perhaps the commerce department bulletin was prompted by the unfortunate error of the American manufacturer who received a request from an English firm for prices on "suspenders." When no order followed he investigated and learned to his consternation that what are known in this country as "suspenders" are called "braces" in England, and that the American "garter" is the English "suspender." A parallel case is that of the American manufacturer who, in his advertising literature for distribution in England, used the word "druggist," only to discover that the Britons call their pharmacists "chemists."

Although speaking the same language, Uncle Sam and John Bull can not long engage in conversation without feeling the need of an interpreter. But one should not be surprised at that. A New England Yankee and a Southern Colonel have great difficulty in understanding each other, and the New Yorker talks a "foreign tongue" to the westerner.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES

Bride Who Has Much to Learn: My Christmas plum pudding was not much of a success. Please publish the recipe which you used at your own Christmas dinner."

Answer: Here it is: "My own Plum Pudding: Buy one-half pound of beef suet and put through your food chopper. To it add two cups of stale, fine white bread crumbs and the yolks of four eggs beaten with one and one-half cups of light brown sugar. Next stir in the juice and grated rind of one lemon, one-fourth pound of citron peel finely shaved, one cup of seedless raisins, one and one-half cups of dried currants and one and one-third cups of raw carrot put through the food chopper before being measured. Dredge the mixture with one-third cup of ordinary bread flour previously mixed with one teaspoon of ground nutmeg, one-third teaspoon of ground cloves and one and one-half teaspoons of ground cinnamon. Fold in the stiffly-beaten whites of four eggs and fill two greased molds three-quarters full of the pudding. For one mold, I used an empty coffee can measuring five inches in height and four and one-half inches across both top and bottom. For the other mold I used a regular steamed-pudding mold measuring three and one-half inches across the bottom, four inches in height with the cover off. I stood these cans together in one large pot containing enough boiling water to rise almost to their tight-fitting covers and let the water continue to boil gently around them for four hours, adding more water as some of it boiled away. For Christmas dinner I served only the larger mold, as that was sufficient with all my pies. The smaller mold I resteamed just long enough to heat through, the following day, and served with a plain hard sauce like the other.

If you would please me when I've passed away Let not your grief embitter you. Be brave; Turn with full courage from my mounded grave And smile upon the children at their play Let them make merry in their usual way; Do not with sorrow those young lives enslave Or steal from them the fleeting joys they crave; Let not your grieving spoil their happy day.

Live on as you have lived these many years, Still let your soul be gentle and be kind—I never liked to see those eyes in tears! Weep not too much that you must stay behind. Share in the lives of others as you'd share, If God had willed it still to leave me there.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

SALLY LEE, a beautiful young public stenographer, marries

TOM PORTER, a real-estate salesman, but after one stormy year of quarrels caused by her desire to continue working so that they can live more comfortably, she leaves him and goes to work in a fashionable hotel in Atlantic City.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XXVII—NEW TEMPTATIONS

After a few days Sally's work settled down into regular routine. She reached her desk early to see what the day would bring, and tried to recapture the holiday feeling of her first few days in Atlantic City.

The big hotel with its bustle and hurry had lost much of its glamor. She no longer glanced up flushed with pleasure when noon came and VIOLET DARE Babette came to get her to go exploring among the little tea-rooms on the side streets where they ate. But there was still the thrill of meeting new people, of taking dictation from men whose names appeared on the front pages of newspapers everywhere. She felt then a part of the great, bustling world outside.

She wanted to work and work and work and find forgetfulness of everything else. If she could only work until she was so tired every night that she fell asleep right away, then there would be no crying and regret over losing Tom.

But often there were hours when she had little to do when she would get up from her desk and wander over to the window looking moodily out to sea, or down on the Boardwalk where the dazzling pageant of beautifully dressed women never failed to thrill her.

Beauty—luxury; how she loved them!

One day as she was standing there wondering what it would feel like to be a part of that gorgeous throng, Babette broke in on her reverie.

"Say Sally, d'you mind taking some letters in my place?"

And at her pleasant assurance that she would be glad of some work to do, Babette went on. "Mr. Simon's here. He's an old grouch that owns that shop I showed you where you can't hardly look at a dress for less than five hundred dollars. He dictates slow enough all right, but he's such a crank I hate him. But you can get along all right with anyone."

"Run along, Babette. I'll take him."

Babette was flattered by Babette's assurance that she could get along all right with anyone, and as she hurried over to her desk and picked up her notebook she remarked pleasantly to the heavy-set scowling man before her. "The other girl is very busy. Do you mind if I take your dictation today?"

"Say Sally, d'you mind taking some letters in my place?"

"You're much too pretty a girl to spend your life at a desk."

day here. And besides I've never done anything like that."

"Time to start then. I'll ask your boss to let you off. He's a good friend of mine. Don't see how he ever picked such a good-looking girl for this job. Should have sent you right over to me. It's not permanent, you understand," he went on.

"Just Saturdays and Sundays sometimes we need a few models to show some of our gowns on the Boardwalk. There'll be another girl with you. All you have to do is walk up and down past the best hotels a few times, and then we put the gown in the window and some woman who wishes she could look like you comes in and buys it."

"Sally's protestations that she couldn't do such a thing though in her heart she was thrilled and proud of the chance were drowned in his explanations."

"Only pay you ten dollars, but if you like you can take it out in merchandise. We'll give you a big reduction."

"You'd have to reduce things down to nothing almost," Sally smiled at the idea of her buying from him.

"Well, we'll see about that. You'll come then." And once more Sally found herself swept along in a strange current.

"Mind?" he answered. "I should

his unfurnished mind. A man of marvelous energy, initiative, executive genius, and at times of unusual personal charm, yet he neglected furnishings his mind. He built great properties and they made money—but no set plan or purpose guided this restless man.

It is a rare privilege to step into a furnished mind.

To have had the opportunity of stepping into such a mind as that of Gladstone, Harper, or Conrad would have meant a feast in intellectual happiness to anyone hungry for a well furnished mind.

A well furnished mind is one that knows what it is about.

COUNTY COURT LOOP LEADERSHIP DISPUTED IN BOTH DIVISIONS

Leadership in both the boys' and girls' loops is disputed by two teams at the end of the fifth week of play in the Greene County Basketball Association League.

Ross Twp. and Cedarville High Schools are tied for top position in the boys' division, each with five victories to its credit and no defeats. Leadership in the girls' loop changed hands during the past week with the

WILBERFORCE WINS FROM ATHENIANS IN MARCH TOWARD TITLE

Wilberforce University court team, national colored basketball champions last season, won its second game this season, scoring a hard-earned 24 to 18 victory over the Baltimore Athenians, Baltimore, Md., one of the leading teams of the country, Monday night at Wilberforce.

With two victories dangling at its belt, Wilberforce is in a fair way to retain the basketball laurels won last season.

Wilberforce won from the Athenians with much in reserve. Winners had a lead of 12 to 5 at the half and injected the entire second team into the contest in the second half. The visitors braced in the final periods and outscored the local university 13 to 12.

Howard University, of Washington, D. C., is said to be the principal obstacle in Wilberforce's triumphant march for a second championship this season. These two leading contenders for the title will meet in a series of two games later in the season.

Third game on the Wilberforce schedule is with the Wilbur Wright Collegians at Fairfield February 2. Next game will be played with West Virginia College Institute at Wilberforce February 8.

Lineup and summary:

Wilberforce (24)	Baltimore (18)
Evans	RF	Poles
Richie	LF	Baskerville
Ward	C	Keller
Harding	RG	Wheatley
Redden	LG	Veney

Substitutions: Wilberforce—Lewis for Redden; Baltimore—Brown for Keller. Field goals—Ward 3, Richie 3, Harding 2, Evans 2, Redden 1, Lewis 1, Poles 4, Baskerville 3, Brown 1. Foul goals—Wheatley 1, Poles 1. Referee—Collins, Cedarville College.

EAGLES WILL PLAY COLLEGE TEAM AND BELLBROOK 5 ALSO

Eagles basketball team, one of the leading independent court teams in the county, will meet Cedarville College and Bellbrook Independents on successive nights this week.

Cedarville College, victor over the University of Dayton Flyers, and possessing one of the best teams among the smaller colleges of the state, will furnish the opposition Tuesday. The game will be played at Cedarville gym.

The Eagles will encounter the Bellbrook Independents Wednesday night at Central High School gym, the game beginning at 8:30 o'clock. Bellbrook is numbered among the few undefeated court teams in the county this season but the locals are confident of shattering its imposing record of victories.

Admission for the Bellbrook game will be 50 and 35 cents for adults and 25 cents for all school children, instead of the general price of 25 cents, first announced.

MRS. JENNIE HAY IS SUMMONED BY DEATH

Mrs. Jennie Warner Hay, 26, Waynesville, former resident of Cedarville, died at McClehan Hospital Monday night about 12 o'clock from a stomach ailment after a brief illness.

She was removed to McClehan Hospital Saturday from her home in Waynesville for an emergency operation, but her weakened condition forbade the operation.

Mrs. Hay was the daughter of Woodrow C. Warner, 225 E. Third St., this city.

She is survived by her father and mother, her husband, Marvin Hay, three small children, one brother, George Warner, Xenia; and one sister, Mrs. Roy Hull, this city.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

GIRLS' ORCHESTRA OF HOME IS HEARD

Tomato plants that will withstand the fusarium wilt, a serious disease of early tomatoes, have been developed and will be distributed to three sections of Ohio this year.

N. W. Glines, until recently extension specialist in horticulture at the Ohio State University, announced this in his annual report to the director of extension. The variety of tomato under experiment is the Bonny Best, an outstanding early variety.

"The experiments have been underway since 1919," Mr. Glines explained. "At that time we selected tomato plants for their resistance to fusarium wilt from a crop in the greenhouse of Charles Reese, Cincinnati. Each year since plants have been selected from crops grown in a soil inoculated with fusarium wilt.

This past year four selections were plated in the greenhouse of U. G. Swingle, Columbus. Mr. Swingle has been unable to grow a crop of Bonny Best at any time within the past 10 years because of fusarium wilt.

"Two of these selections, grown in soil inoculated with the disease, produced and matured six full clusters of fruit without showing any symptoms of fusarium wilt. Two others proved 85 and 90 percent resistant, respectively. Seeds from these selections will be distributed to three tomato growing sections of the state this year."

In the field growers have no control of fusarium wilt, the specialist says, except through development of resistant strains.

"Not Possible To Classify"

By Mack Sauer

A few jottings of the day by Samuel Pepys, Jr.: Up and to bathing my neck in salves and poultices and tied a piece of asofoetida on a string to wear about my neck, something I have not done since my boy time, but which I will no take up, so much does my cold trouble me. Put paper around my socks, so that it will help keep my feet warm and bundled up ready for the chills of the day.

My furnace would not draw, not knowing whether it was because of the quality of the coal, or because the pipes needed cleaning out; anyway put in a long distance call for my chore boy, who lives in the country, to come clean it out, and got into an argument with my wife about where long distance is located, she claiming she is right here in Xenia, but I wagering that she must be in London, England, or Paris, France, or some other long distance point, so long it takes to get there.

Again comes snow, to cover my walks which I have swept clean, so out and sweeping them again, getting some snow in my slippers, and why I should be so foolish as to wear low shoes this winter Heaven only knows. A dog baying in the distance, and I longed to be out with my gun trailing rabbits, a sport I have found no time for this year.

At the office found many ads for the classified page and, too many result stories, making me feel that in all the territory between Columbus and Cincinnati there is no classified page equal to that of The Gazette for results. Heard a powerful lie from Vern Fairies about a horse running from a barn in which pop corn was stored and which was on fire, and when the pop corn was popped, the horse ran back into it again, and, thinking it was snow and not pop corn, it froze to death.

On the street to get some new license tags for my flivver, fearing mightily the police.

EAGLES PREPARE TO REHABIT OLD NEST

Cleveland, O., Jan. 23—Two American eagles familiar to hundreds of northern Ohioans are getting ready to move back into their great nest in the woods near Drownhelm, to start raising their young.

The eagles have lived in the woods for many years. In the winter they go to the Wild Hill hollow, a few miles south and stay in the dense woods protected from the hardest storms.

Recently the eagles visited their nest near the lakeshore for the first time for several weeks. It was filled with snow. The birds usually return in February and lay their eggs.

People wrote - "I recommend FREED-EISEMANN to my friends"

WHY does FREED-EISEMANN lead in public choice? What has made FREED-EISEMANN one of the most phenomenal successes in Radio?

We thought we knew the answer, but we wanted to make sure so we went to an investigator, gave him the names and addresses of a huge list of FREED-EISEMANN users and asked him to send these people a questionnaire under his own name.

One of the questions he asked was: "If a friend of yours were buying a radio, which make would you recommend?"

By the thousands users replied, "I recommend FREED-EISEMANN to my friends."

It is this nation-wide enthusiastic approval by users that has made FREED-EISEMANN the largest Neutrodyne manufacturer in the world.

ALL FREED-EISEMANN sets are built for use with an aerial because it has been scientifically proved that an aerial is the most dependable means of picking from the air the maximum amount of broadcast energy.

Let us install a Freed Eisemann this week. Convenient terms can be arranged.
